

Motivational Speaker, Author, Podcaster & Coach

After a life of prioritizing everyone else's needs and opinions over her own, Debbie realized at the age of 50 that this was her one and only life. She didn't want to look back years from now with regret for the things she had never done. She stopped saying "I can't" and replaced it with "Maybe I can". Beginning by no longer viewing herself as a victim of her circumstances, she stopped allowing her struggles to define her. Recently, she became a widow and feels even more empowered to share her message.

Debbie, who is also a Canfield Certified Trainer in the Success Principles, recently wrote her first book, "On Second Thought... Maybe I Can", which Jack Canfield, co-author of the Chicken Soup for the Soul® series, said was "Delightfully written".

Debbie bravely shares her very personal story through her memoir and with her audiences to inspire them and highlight that they are not alone. Life is hard, but that doesn't mean you cannot live the life of your dreams. Debbie is now doing just that!

JACK CANFIELD

Co-author of the Chicken Soup for the Soul® Series

"I really want to encourage you to read her book. It's really delightfully written. It made me smile a lot and it will teach you a lot of lessons and inspire and motivate you to tackle the things that are stopping you from getting where you want to go."

Jack Canfield
Co-author of the Chicken Soup for the Soul® series.
